Scope and Importance:

Maternal-fetal medicine is a global medium for delivering studies and recent innovations on treatment, prevention, and fetal & maternal disease management, sharing ideas on it and thus leading to the development of expertise in maternal and fetal medicine, for the betterment of both academia and industry. Our Conference brings together industry experts, maternal-fetal & neonatal pharmaceutical and healthcare sectors, making the meeting an ideal networking platform, sharing views and knowledge through immersive discussions.

The therapies for maternal, fetal and neonatal care differ from market to market. Many organizations regard prenatal, fetal and neonatal treatments as preventive care and therefore are not protected by them, and many have generally refused congenital care. Nonetheless, prices typically do not exceed USD $35,000 for countries where these requirements are covered. This is less than the expenses incurred only in the first year of life to treat congenital disorders. Therefore, treating disorders such as fetal lung and heart defects and spinal bifida in utero can be more cost-effective, as this can reduce costs compared with postnatal treatments.

Why Singapore?

Singapore is an independent island city-state in Southeast Asia and is formally the Republic of Singapore. The city-state is rated as a global Alpha+ city, reflecting its impact on the global economy. Singapore is the Asia's only country with a AAA sovereign rating from all major credit rating agencies, and one of the world's 11. Singapore is a highly developed country, ranking 9th on the UN Human Development Index, the highest for a sovereign state in Asia, with the world's 7th highest per capita GDP.

Singapore is highly placed in key social indicators: employment, welfare, quality of life, personal security and accommodation with 90% of homeownership. The city-state is home to 5.6 million residents, including permanent residents, 39 percent of whom are foreign nationals. Singapore has four official languages: English, Malay, Chinese Mandarin, and Tamil. It has a rainforest temperate climate with no distinctive seasons, uniform temperature and pressure, high humidity and plenty of rainfall. Singapore has a highly developed market economy, historically based on a widespread trade in warehouses. Globally, in several economic sectors, it is a pioneer country.

Singapore's tourism industry is a major contributor to its economy, attracting 18.5 million international tourists in 2018, more than three times the total population of Singapore. Singapore is the world's fifth most-visited city, and second in the Asia-Pacific region. Singapore has a healthcare system that is generally efficient. Singapore's healthcare system was ranked 6th highest in the world by the World Health Organization in its World Health Survey. Overall, for the past two decades, Singapore has had the lowest infant mortality rates in the world.
