CONFERENCE INTRODUCTION

The outbreak of COVID-19 pandemic in the world has led to a rise in falsified drugs entering the supply chain, thus putting public health at risk in domestic as well as global markets. The global Anti-counterfeit Pharmaceutical Packaging market size is expected to gain market growth in the forecast period of 2020 to 2025, with a CAGR of 6.2% in the forecast period of 2020 to 2025 and will be expected to reach USD 124.5 million by 2025, from USD 97.7 million in 2019. According to a report, £9.2bn has been lost through intellectual property (IP) theft, £7.6bn to industrial espionage and £2.2bn from extortion. Anti-Counterfeit Packaging Market Size will be Worth $184.87 Billion by 2025. Track and trace technology products are expected to grow at a CAGR of over 9% by revenue, from 2016 to 2025 driven by the superior product detection and tracking through the supply chain. On-dose authentication technology can help deter counterfeiters, while also helping patients better engage with their medicines. SoteriaRx® provides a level of authenticity, transparency, and brand protection not previously available to the Pharma industry. Incorporating taggants directly into a product's film coating or primary packaging provides a unique opportunity for brands to secure their product with real-time verification. Using a smartphone app extends this technology to enable faster decision making and provides a unique way to interact with patients to improve outcomes. Through real-time data collection and analysis, patient-focused product teams can make medicines smarter and provide more personalized support resources as needed.

15:20 - How MSD is fighting counterfeit drugs with blockchain technology

Global Pharma supply chains are increasingly complex, with products passing through multiple entities in their journey to the patient. The level of counterfeited material entering the market has increased over time, also as it has become more complex to detect counterfeited products. As a result, patient safety is put at risk and it's creating loss of public confidence in pharmaceutical products. As part of the fight against counterfeiting, health authorities around the world are publishing legislation forcing pharma companies to serialize products at the unit level to enable traceability of the product from the manufacturing site until the patient. Learn how MSD is addressing these challenges in fighting counterfeited medicine with blockchain technology
